SECTION C

Question 10 Essay: Importance of proper land distribution

Any relevant introduction (3 Marks)

The proper distribution of land is very important in society because land is the major resource for settlement, agriculture, and development. In biblical history, when Joshua divided Canaan among the Israelites, each tribe received its rightful inheritance. This promoted order and prevented conflict among the tribes.

Any relevant point (02 Marks)

First, proper land distribution reduces disputes among citizens because everyone knows his or her boundaries clearly. When land ownership is clear, quarrels and violence decrease.

Second, proper land distribution promotes equality in society. Each family or group gets fair access to resources for farming, grazing, and settlement.

Third, it encourages productivity because people use land confidently when ownership is secure. Farmers invest more in crops and development.

Fourth, proper land distribution strengthens peace and unity in a nation because citizens feel justice has been done.

Fifth, it supports national development since land is used effectively for schools, roads, industries, and settlements.

Any relevant conclusion (02 mark)

Therefore, just as Joshua distributed land wisely among Israelites, modern governments should ensure fair land allocation for peace, justice, and development.
